This is the night that spooks and goblins walk abroad.

The district court will take up the criminal docket Monday.

We have found out how old Ann is, but how old is her sweetheart?

Again it is the last day of the week and the last day of the month.

The question now is not whether the Santa Fe Central is soon to be built, but what lot on Roswell will the depot be placed.

The Deming Graphic runs at the head of its editorial column this sentiment:

"New Mexico wants statehood and will not consent to be merged with Arizona."

Mayor Harrison has decided to become a candidate for the presidency on the Democratic ticket. Harrison has many qualities that would make him an available candidate.

Contractor Wallace Hessiden of Albuquerque, has received word that J. R. Farwell, chief engineer of the Santa Fe Central surveying corps, has reached Roswell, and is now working back toward Torrance. This means that the survey for the extension of the Santa Fe Central railway to Roswell is practically finished.—The Optic.

How Old is Ann's Beau?

The problem of Ann's age is as follows: "Mary is 24 years old. She is twice as old as Ann was when Mary was as old as Ann is now. How old is Ann?" Of course you have figured it out that Ann is about 18. But how old is her beau? He is as old as Mary was when Ann lacked six years of being as old as her beau is now and the difference between Ann's age and her beau's age is one seventh of her beau's age. How old is Ann's beau?

A Deck of Cards.

It is said that over 100 lots in the new town of Estancia on the Santa Fe Central have been sold at prices ranging from $100 to $150 each, that is a pretty good price for lots out on the plain and shows what can be done by advertising. Ten thousand cards with: "Why not do it now? What? Buy lots in the town site of Estancia" were distributed by the town site Co., and the boom of prairie real estate is attributed to these cards mostly. Deming might try the racket for awhile and see what the result would be.—Deming Graphic.

This Is Enterprise.

On the same day that THE RECORD announced to its Roswell readers the decision of the Alaskan Boundary Commission, the London Daily Telegraph had this to say:

"In ordinary circumstances no more importance would attach to such an announcement than would be accorded to the usual gossip current at the close of an inquiry of this sort, but the Associated Press has gained a well-earned reputation for the accuracy of its reports on international questions which have their center in London. It is therefore very probable that this particular statement is substantially correct. No official information is available, but there is confirmation of the report from other sources."

So by having an Associated Press daily in Roswell, the people of Roswell are able to read London news at their supper table, even before the people of London read it in their papers. Is not this enterprise?

A Prominent El Paso Citizen.

B. F. Hammett, the mayor of El Paso, who has been here for several days at the Grand Central and who came to inspect property interests here three miles south, left on the afternoon train for his home. He is a member of the World's Fair Commission and has been in St. Louis and stopped off here en route to his home.

How Old Is Ann?

The following is the solution how old is Ann, by Dudley A. Reid, a Missouri friend of Mr. Faulkner of this city:

Mary is twenty-four years today

And Mary is twice as old they say

As Ann was old when Mary was old

As Ann is old—so the problem told;

And now how old is Ann we pry?

If Mary is twenty-four years today

And Mary is twice as old they say

As Ann was old when Mary was old

As Ann is old—as Mary was old—

As Ann will be—let's see—let's see?

Our trolley has slipped somewhere may be.

Now if Mary is only twenty-four

And Mary is twice as many more

As Ann was once sometime before—

Or as Ann is now—or will be when

Her birthday comes sometime again—?

Then how many years is Ann today??

What was the problem? O, tell us pray,

For our skull seems as thick as barnyard door

And we're off the track again once more.

If Mary is only a dozen and twelve—

How it makes us sweat and grunt and delve

And twice as old as Ann was when

Mary was as old as Ann was then

Or Ann is now—or as Ann will be

When Mary is twice as old as she

Or as Ann will be when Mary's again

As many years as Ann was then—???

Or as Ann is now—O, tell us pray,

How the problem reads—and by the way

Were they twins or triplets??

Can you say??

And how many years has it been today???

CANDY AND NUT SOCIAL.

Christian Endeavorers Spend Happy Evening.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church assembled themselves together at the residence of their pastor, Dr. C. E. Lukens, last evening.

Their purpose in gathering was to develop one phase of the society's objects, which, although very important, is one of the minor principles of their organization—to increase their mutual acquaintance.

More than thirty of their members and friends presented themselves, and a very cordial reception was extended them by the pastor and his wife.

The young men had a two-fold privilege—first, in securing the companionship of one or more of the fairer sex, and also in bringing sufficient candy and nuts for their enjoyment during the evening.

Some of the features of amusement included a display of talent in the art of "drawing at first sight," many of the results being very commendable. The prize, a box of candy, was secured by Miss Bessie Peacock and Mr. H. Thorne, both parties possessing the natural art of division. The reward gave them great satisfaction.

The Misses Wallace told fortunes. If you were not lucky enough to possess one already, these good ladies had the ingenuity to manufacture one to order. The fortunes they told about remind us of the imaginary castles we dreamed about in our childhood days, and hope their fruition will be just as dear.

There were other events and doings which together contributed to an evening of healthy fun and merriment, and as the young folks left they declared it to be one of the best C. E. socials they had ever had.

We congratulate the Christian Endeavor society and wish them every success as they go forward with renewed zeal and enthusiasm in their work "for Christ and the Church," and that they will become, to quote from the society's objects, "more useful in the service of God."
